

Fading Memory

*My friend sits in the corner.
In reverie, he is reminiscing with his past trying to find his way through a vast wasteland with few remaining markers.*

*It is hard watching the lights of cognition
go out, one by one, breaking our connection.
He is leaving me, his mind slipping away from our reality, back toward the security of the womb.*

*While the threads, holding him within my world,
gradually unravel, is his mind truly blank?
Or is he slowly entering the Elysian Fields with a new existence that he cannot share with me?*

John I. Coe, M.D.

Dr. Coe (ΑΩΑ, University of Minnesota, 1944) is professor emeritus, pathology, at the University of Minnesota, retired chief of pathology and director of laboratories in Hennepin County Medical Center, and medical examiner for Hennepin County. His address is: 8106 Highwood Drive, Bloomington, Minnesota 55438. E-mail: johnicoe@cs.com.