

The Cremation of Frida Kahlo

After the flesh was gone
they say her bones burned violet
before they crumbled.

Toad-eyed Diego wept
and warned the world, "She'll clump into your heart
and then she'll eat it. She ate mine."

And on the heap of white ash that had been her
a steel rod of spine glowed red.

George Young, MD

JM

Dr. Young (A.O.A., University of Southern California, 1963) is retired from the Boulder Medical Center, where he was an internist and rheumatologist. He has published one book of poetry, Spinoza's Mouse. His address is: 2315 Hawthorn Avenue, Boulder, Colorado 80304. E-mail: geopeg63@msn.com.